

Continuing Enrollment for Thesis or Projects Units

To maintain standing in a graduate program, graduate students who have completed all registrations for their graduate coursework, and who have registered for the maximum number of thesis or project per semester units required by the program, be required to enroll for one unit of thesis or project , effective Winter Term, 1998.

Note: This requirement is applicable to those students who have completed all registration for graduate course work and who have registered for the maximum number of thesis or project units required by their program. Students must register each semester or term to maintain continuous enrollment until they have secured faculty approval for their theses or projects. Students must maintain their Graduate Standing: Classified status and be enrolled in graduate course work in order to apply for graduation. If the program is interrupted, reapplication to the Graduate School and program is necessary. 15/AS/97/GC Approved January 9, 1998, editorially amended August 12, 2004.
