Due to the growing global nature of today's job market, cross-cultural training is often an employment prerequisite. This major emphasizes archaeology and cultural, physical and applied aspects of anthropology. It is also designed for students seeking interdisciplinary and regional specializations, such as Asian Studies or forensic science.

Training in anthropology is ideal for pursuing a career in many related fields such as forensic science, biology, medicine, public health, law, public administration and urban planning. Specialized career paths include working for foreign state departments, conservation organizations, and roles in cultural resource management.
