What will I study?

Marketing focuses on creating value in the exchange relationship between the firm and the markets it serves. It plays a pivotal role in connecting customers and stakeholders to a business and in building relationships with these groups. Marketers plan, implement, and control specific strategies and tactics that will meet their customers’ ongoing needs and wants. Interesting classes include Consumer Behavior and Marketing Research.

What can I do with a concentration in Marketing?

A concentration in Marketing provides exciting career opportunities for personal growth, creativity, variety, and income in the dynamic and ever-changing business environment. Professional careers in marketing are to be found in the marketing departments of industrial firms and merchandising firms.

POTENTIAL CAREER TIMELINE

Gallo FAMILY VINEYARDS®

Marketer, Power Automation Systems

Berrington is a solid example of the motivation and drive among College of Business Administration students. After posting a 0.0 GPA his first semester at CSU Stanislaus due to a love of athletics over academics, he turned it all around and earned Dean’s List honors the following year. His GPA rose to above a 3.0 and he became intrigued with the principles and trends in the marketing world. Professor Theo Chronis really sparked that initial interest, while Dr. Al Petrosky carried the torch for the remainder of Berrington’s college experience. Berrington began looking at advertisements and PR material in a whole new light.

After landing an internship with the Lathrop-based Power Automation Systems, the company offered Berrington a full-time marketing position. Berrington says it’s been the experience of a lifetime.

His role with Power Automation Systems covers an array of various duties — overseeing the overall marketing strategy and execution including: Public Relations, Web/online initiatives, multimedia, direct mail, print material design, branding initiatives, green initiatives, and sales.
