

My poster states my hypothesis, background and method that will be accomplished to be able to investigate in comparison how anxiety levels are affected from the global pandemic that is known as COVID-19 and racism. These two topics have been of main focus this past year and I would like to see how and when anxiety increases with also keeping in mind demographics, social status etc. and how they may have a small influence on how one is affected by one more than the other. These two topics are very sensitive I am aware and because of them being sensitive, I am longing to see how one may affect each individual.
