

The Association Between Delinquency Expressed Through Media and Minors Committing Crimes

Summary

Is there an association between delinquency expressed in the media and minors engaging in criminal activities? A meta-analytical approach will be taken. Results will be drawn from past research studies to draw conclusions in order to suggest an answer to the proposed research question. The results expect to determine a positive association between crime expressed in the media and minors engaging in criminal activities. I hope that these results will reach academics in the fields of media and criminology. Along with policy makers and the wider US society in order to contribute to the formation of updated laws and regulations related to minors and social media.
